Press Release

Walshe investigation update

Contact: D. Traub, 781-830-4917

The following statement answers a compendium of questions posed overnight and this morning by a variety of news outlets:

Massachusetts State Police and Cohasset Police detectives continue to investigate the suspicious disappearance of Ana Walshe, 39, from her Cohasset home on or about New Year's Day 2023.

Search activity conducted north of Boston yesterday resulted in a number of items being collected which will now be subject to processing and testing to determine if they are of evidentiary value to this investigation. No detail on those items will be disclosed at this time.

There are no anticipated searches of public areas today, but that may change should the work of detectives develop additional areas of potential investigation.

There is no anticipated change or adjustment of the charges in place in this matter at this time.

There are no planned on-camera updates or availabilities planned at this time.

The processing of the home may be completed as soon as today or tomorrow.

Questions about potential state involvement in the care of the children should be addressed to the agency responsible for such activity, the Department of Children and Families, for whatever information they determine to be public.
